

is Assistant Professor of Sociology at Northwestern University near Chicago.

Sławomir Dębski. Born 1971. PhD (Hist.), Jagiellonian University. Program Coordinator (“Poland and her neighbours”), Analyses Department, The Polish Institute of International Affairs; Deputy Editor, “Europa” (a quarterly in Russian). Research interests: German-Russian relations, Russian Federation, history of diplomacy.

Carlos Escudé studied in Buenos Aires; St. Antony's College, Oxford, and Yale University. He obtained his Ph.D. in Political Science from the latter in 1981. He is the author of books published in Argentina, the United States and Italy, as well as academic articles published in the United Kingdom, Germany, Israel, Mexico, Brazil and Chile. In 1991–92 he was special advisor to the Foreign Minister of Argentina on issues of foreign policy strategy. Among other appointments abroad he has been Visiting Professor at Harvard University's Department of Government (1994) and Madrid's Instituto José Ortega y Gasset (1997); Visiting Scholar at the Institut für Spanien- und Lateinamerikastudien of the University of Augsburg (1996) and at Johns Hopkins' School of Advanced International Studies (1990); and Senior Associate Member at St. Antony's College, Oxford (1984-85). He is currently Professor of International Relations at Universidad Torcuato Di Tella, Buenos Aires.

Jacek Foks. Born 1975. LLM (Warsaw University – Department of Law and Administration). Analyst, The Polish Institute of International Affairs, and Editor of “The Polish Foreign Affairs Digest” (quarterly). Main research fields: Legal aspects of international relations, and private international law. Hobbies: Geography and cultures of Oceania, traveling.

Jonathan Fox received his Ph.D. in 1997 from the University of Maryland at College Park and is currently a lecturer at the Political Studies Department of Bar Ilan University (Israel). His research interests include the influence of religion on ethnic conflict, the analysis of Huntington's 'civilizations' thesis and his most current project, the quantitative analysis of separation of religion and state across the globe. His most recent book is “Ethnoreligious Conflict in the Late 20th Century”, forthcoming from Lexington Books.

Beata Górka-Winter. Born 1976. MA (Warsaw University – Department of Journalism and Political Sciences, and National Security Faculty). Analyst, The Polish Institute of International Affairs. Currently works on Poland's security policy, and the EU's security policy, Baltic security zone. Participated in the Kosovo democracy-building program.